Building and Development Fees

Important Information on Fees

If you are submitting an application for building permit or review by planning or engineering, you will be required to pay various fees associated with review and processing of your application(s). The following information is provided as a guide but the specific circumstances of your application may result in multiple fees being assessed. Please ensure that you have a complete understanding of the various fees that may apply to your application before you submit. Most building permit costs are one-time fees while planning and engineering reviews are completed on a full cost recovery basis with initial deposits. The time to review, and therefore the cost, varies by complexity of the project, completeness of the information provided and applicant responsiveness. Building fees based on the valuation and details of your project and are due at time of permit issuance with some deposits due at application if outside plan check or inspection services are required. The vast majority of amounts listed in the Planning and Engineering sections are deposits unless otherwise noted as a fee, and are due at time of application. Applicants are responsible for actual costs incurred including consultant costs and staff costs at fully burdened rates. For requested services of City staff for which no fee is listed in the Fee Schedule, the Director or Directors of the department or departments whose services are requested shall determine the appropriate fee based on current hourly rates of staff.

Please also note that the Cotati-Rohnert Park Unified School District and the Rancho Adobe Fire Protection District may also levy fees on your project. Those fees are not included here. You should contact those agencies directly to determine if additional fees apply.

If you have questions about fees that may apply to your project, please feel free to contact the Community Development Department at 707-665-3637.
